MONEY MARKET. SUNDAY, Feb. 18-6 P. M. Speculators in fancy stocks have no a suse to find dance of capital seeking employment, but in su h a shape that no one will touch it but the broke they cannot find use for all that offers. The banks find it difficult to make all the loans they desire upen their own terms. They do not ask anything above the ordinary rate of interest, but they do not wish to lock up their funds by discounting long bu-siness paper, and that of short date of the right quality is scarce. The discount line, by this week's returns, will show a moderate increase. Notwithstanding this plethora in the money market, fancy stocks hang at about the old points. There are no buyers in the street and the market is exhausted The brokers have now a great many more fancies crease their line. They can get money enough of the banks to carry any quantity of the trash, but they want faith, without which it will not do to touch railroad stocks. Their position is already precarious enough, without endangering it still more. If they let up the demand, down goes prices, and if tinue to buy, outsiders will realize on all in their hands, instead of coming forward as pur

Our foreign import trade continues light. The total value of importations into this port last week was under two million of dollars. The export trade unfortunately is equally limited. This for the season is extraordinary. Last week the shipment of specie from Boston were large, and they are likely to be large from this port this week. Sterling excharge rules at 94 a 94 per cent premium. This is shove a shipping point, and bars can be remitted at a profit. Two stemers leave this port this week for Europe—ene on Wednesday for Liverpool, and one on Saturday for Southampton and Bremen. Both will take out a large amount of gold. We may have a Canfornia steamer in this week, but hardly in time to make up for the drain for export.

Mr. Albert H. Nicolay's regular semi-weekly suction sale of stocks and bonds will take place on Monday, the 18th inst., at 121 o'clock, at the The annexed statement exhibits the value of

Compared with the corresponding week of 1854, this shows a decrease of $610,616 in the amount thrown on the market this year. The Reading Railroad Company up to the 14th of February, had brought to market 241,687 tons of ceal, against 232,805 itons to the same date last year. The gress income of the company this year, compared with last, has been much larger than appears by the above transportation of coal. The Reading Railroad Company have now other important sources of revenue besides its coal business. After long years of delay, the great line of road to the North and West, via the Little Schuylkill, Catawissa, Williamsport and Erie, Sunbury and Erie, and Williamsport and Elmira roads, was opened on the 18th of December last. These works. senting at least $8,000,000, are immediate feeders to the Reading road, from which a very large increase in its passenger and merchandise traffic may with source cannot be computed at less than from tares to five hundred thousand dollars per annum. This is considered a reasonable estimate. The distance from Eimirs to Philadelphia, by way of New York in 363 miles, passing over several grades from 40 to 60 feet to the mile; while the distance by the Cata wissa route is but 262 miles - making a difference in favor of the latter of 101 miles over a road having but one grade of 35 feet to the mile. Besides the epening into the Mahanoy region, and thence through the ultimate connection with the Sunbury and Erie to the great trade of the West, the Dauphin cation between the valleys of the Schuylkill and the Susquehanns, and connects the works of the Reading Company with the Pennsylvania Central Railroad ex-tending to Pitteburg. The trade by the Dauphin and Surquehanna will be a valuable one. A portion of the coal which will thus reach the market is peculiar being semi-bituminous, and adapted as a substitute ceipts, in the face of a moderate increase in the coal business of the road, which is of a local character entirely. The ecal business must continue to be the great source of revenue. During the year 1853, 1,582,244 tons of coal pass ed ever the road. During the year 1854, notwith, standing extraordinary drawbacks, I,987,854 tons were transported; which, at an average of $1 632 per ton, gives an aggregate sum of $3,253,822 78. From passengers, merchandise, mails, &c., the fur-ther sum of $527,453 13 was received—making together a gross income of $3,871,639, equal to $40, 666 per mile. From this sum deduct the expenses extraordinary charges, interest on loans, renewal fund, &c., amounting to $2,346,428 70, and the net income amounts to $1,435,210 30 -- which, on the capital stock of 1853 ($,656,332), is equal to a divi-dend of upwards of twenty-one and a half per cent. dend of upwards of twenty-one and a mair per code.

If the coal transportation this year (1855) shall be no greater than that of 1854, the amount of business derived from new sources, by the extensive connection made with other railroads, will swell the gross income to about four and a half millions of dollars, without much additional expense in operating the line. This immensee reveaue from ninety-three miles of road is unprecedented in the history of railroads in this country, and we do not believe it is equalled in any part of the world. It averages a gross receipt of nuwards of $48,000 per mile. The average receipt per mile on all the railroads of the State of New York, for the year 1854, according to the report of the State Engineer, were but $8,278. It therefore appears that the average receipts of the Reading Rail road per mile are about $40,000 more than the average in this State. We annex a comparative table showing the cost, gross receipts, length, and grees increase in cost of the three great railroads in this country. RAILBOAD FINANCIS-COMPARATIVE PRODUCTIVENESS

This is a very important and very instructing table.

It shows at a glance what the public have long been wanting; the comparative productiveness of prominent railroads. Holders and operators in the stocks of these companies know actually very little about them, what their value is based on, or any thing else. We have added to the cost of the Erie the cost of the roads it bases, as the income from all is reported in a lump. To carry out this compa. rison, we annex a statement showing the real pro ductiveness of each of these roads:-

In making up these tables we have taken the off In making up these tables we have taken the offi-cial returns of the three companies for the capital, debt and gross income, and there we have dropped them. The results are reached by a process of our own. The per cent gross income on c:st can easily be figured up from official statements, but in striving at the net income on cost, we have allowed sixty per cent for running expenses, believing that such a rate is within, rather than over, the actual current operating expenditures. The net income of the New York Central, on this calculation, is 6; per cent on thecost. The debt of the Central Comper cent on thecost. The debt of the Central Company bears 7 per cent interest, and being about half as much as the stock, leaves for the stock barely 6 per cent. The net income of the E is is 54 per cent on the cent. The debt of the Eric company bears 7 per cent, and being about three times as large as the ings, and leaves but one third of one per cent for the stock. The net income of the Reading is 82 per cent on the cost. The debt of the Reading company bears 6 per cent interest, which is 23 per cent below the net income on cost. The debt being $11,000.000, the 22 per cent saved on that amount is so much added to the 84 per cent to go to the stock, which, on $7,500,000, increases the per cent to 122. It would be well enough for those interested to look at at these results which cannot be controverted, and compare the market value of the stocks representing the different companies. For the purpose of enabling the public to do so, and to see the comparative position of each, to do so, and to see to e comparative position of each, we sinex a table giving the necessary points:

very different from that presented in the figures of market value. If New York Central is worth 931 per cent, with a net income on capital of 6 per cent, it can easily be figured out what Reading is worth with a net income on capital of 122 per cent—more than double that of the Central. The difference does not end here. About one haif of the business of the New York Central road is affected more or less by competition, and the charges for transportation are therefore reduced to the lowest point. It is restricted by legislative acts, on charges for its local business. The Reading Railroad has a perfect monopoly of every dollar of its traffic. No other road in the coun try has it to the same extent. It cannot, therefore, be affected by any outside pressure, or by any com-petitor route. These things should be weighed and well considered by capitalists, previous to embark-ing in any investment, or in relation to any they msy now have in railroad stocks. The dates we have given above is the surest and safest guide to go by-The New York State Engineer, in his railroad re. port for 1854, says that the average current operat. ing expenses of all the roads in the State was 57 per cent. We have adopted 60 per cent as the stan. dard, and believe that both the Central and Erie exceed that rate. The high grades and curves of the Erie and Central, with the speed required to keep up with rival routes, are very expensive. The Reading Company pays no regard to high speed, and its grade being all in favor of its freighted cars, one engine can do the work of four on the Erie, at less cost. Our estimate of sixty per cent for current operating expenses on the Reading, may, therefore, be excessive. The company reports the cost of ope rating at 47h per cent. At a ca culation of afty per ceat, the net income on capital would be 17 per cent.

for the bituminous coal, rather than competing with the anthracite. From these various sources—the channels designed by nature for resching the trade of The Illinois Central Railroad Company have fur niting the prospects beyond any estimate which has hitherto been made. The travel and traff: from these sources account for the great increase in re-nished the following explanation relative to the sale of lands:—

The lands sold under pre-emption rights were necessarily taken from the free lands, as by the terms of the mortgage the company is restricted from selling any of the two millions of acres below the average terms, to cover the $17,000,000 of bends. By the report published last month, 102,677 acres of these lands had been disposed of, and by the financial statement (C) of the company's interest fund, $242,372 23 were credited for each received prior to the lat January.

A few days since it was semi-officially stated that the lands sold had been taken from the 2,000,000 acres mortgaged, and therefore the company had still remaining 345,000 acres of free lands. We have now in a more recent semi-officially statement.

have now, in a more recent semi-official statement. an admission that the lands sold were taken from the free lands and credited to the company's interest fund. We have not got at the point yet. The question is: Has the Plinois Central Railroad Conpany 345,000 acres of unincumbered lands which it is at liberty to mortgage to secure $3,000,000? It never had but 2,593,859 acres; but we will call the amount 2,595,600 acres. 2,000,000 acres were mortgaged to secure the payment of $17,000,000 of bonds. In that same mortgage 250,000 acres, in addition to the 2,000,000 acres, were set aside, and declared to be held by the trustees free from incombrance, and irrevocably appropriated to secure the payment of the semi-annual interest on the $17,000,000 bonds. The 250,000 acres were precisely as much appropriated to secure the $17,000,000 of bonds as the 2,000,000 acres. They were declared to be held free from all other encumbrance. Of course, then, the lands to which pre emption rights attached at $2 50 per acre, were necessarily ex-cluded, as well from the 250,000 acres appropriated to secure the interest, as from the 2,000,000 acres appropristed to secure the principal of the $17,000,000 of bonds; for the right of a pre-emption claimant to purchase the land at $2.50 per acre is an encum brance upon the land to which it attaches, to th extent of nearly three quarters of the average esti mated value placed upon the lands by the company. The estimated value of the 250,000 acres appropri at d to secure the interest on the $17,000,000 o bords, was at least $2,500,000. If encumbered b pre-emption rights, their value would be but $625 000. It follows, therefore, most conclusively, tha 2,250,000 acres of the company's lands are set apart held and appropriated to secure the payment o principal and interest of the $17,000,000 construe tion bonds, and that these lands are in no part, or in any menrer, affected by any other right, or subject to any other lien, claim or encumbrance. This indeed, is very clearly stated in the last report of the directors, in the following terms:—
"There are three classes of lands: 2,000,000 acres beld to secure the $17,000,000 construction bonds; 250,000 acres held to secure the payment of luterest on the construction bonds, and 345,000 acres held unincumbered, for the purposes of the company.'
The 345,000 acres, then, properly speaking, are the only free lands which the company ever had; for every acre excepting these, was encumbered to se-cure the construction bonds. Now, if by the provisions of the act of incorporation the company was obliged to sell a portion of its lands to early spitters upon them, at $2.50 per acre, (about one-qua part of the estimated value of the iands, as seco for the bonds,) the lands thus sold must either been taken from the 345,000 acres remaining with company, or else the bondholders have been frauded of a portion of their security. It is not tess a wrongful abstraction from the security of bondholders that the company has seen fit to cre the interest fund with the comparatively trifling s received for these lands. The amount sold at $1 per acre, up to Jamery 1, 1855, was 102,577 and The sum credited (for "pre-emption and free lands from pre emption purchasers.) The average emated value of these lands, when set spart and propriated to se ure the bondholders, was about $1,025,770. We therefore say that the explanation furnished to the Post is altogether unsatisfactor Either the company has deducted the laud sold u der the incumbrance of the rights of the pre-ention claimante, at $2 50 per acre, from the 345, a res which the company was at liberty to disp of, being unappropriated to secure the creditors the company, and which was the only honest comto be pursued—and in which case, the compa-bas not remaining the 345,000 acres to mortgage security for the additional $3,000,000—or else to lands thus sold have been deducted from the bo holders' securities, involving an abstraction to less an amount than $783,388.

There has been very little doing in dry goods since cur last, the weather having been quite unpropi-tions, but there is reason to believe that we are on the eve of something like active movements, as more buyers have made their appearance; and these are understood to be ready to operate with some de gree of freedom, which cannot but lead to a little animation, that will be most serviceable and agree able to factors, who have experienced nothing very cheering for months past. There is no considerable accumulation of stock, but the assortment in mar-ket is a good one, and will greatly facilitate the exe cution of orders—a matter of decided importance at a period when trade is backward. Prices manifeet no special changes since our last. The inquiry is moderate for brown and bleached sheetings and shirtings of desirable kinds, and these are firm. Cotton fiannels have attracted a little more attention, at old prices. Duck is generally 1c. per yard lower, but is inactive. Denims and drills are essentially unchanged. Ginghams are in lighter stock, but are not much needed, and are heavy in price. Lawns and cenaburgs are as last noticed.

Printing cloths are in fair demand, and on the advance. Prints and stripes are saleable and steady.

Ticks are, in a measure, neglected. We understand that the shipments of domestic cottons are now very limited, but that they are likely to increase within a few weeks. Woollen goods continue as quiet as pessible, not withstanding the restricted production, and the im-probability of any further change in prices, excepting such se would be favorable to seliers. Blankets are scarcely noticed by jobbers. Fancy cassimeres are plenty, and in mederate request at unaltered rates. Cloths, flannels, jeans and linsey remain generally doll and beavy, with a fair amount of each article offering. Mouselin de laines are in improving dem and at full quotations. Nothing new can be noticed in satincts or tweeds.

Foreign productions are being so lightly dealt in that we can get no important material to form a re. port more special than what may be expressed by saying that the trade is dull and heavy, and that in most all the current movements any existing ad-vantage is secured by purchasers. This is the case both in private trade and at public sale; and so far as it is so, it forms no new feature in the business. The receipts of goods are limited, and there are good reasons to believe that they will continue so, unless foreign manufacturers should take it into their heads to send us supplies, which we cannot need, or their own account. If they do this, they will soffer sorely, and injure the trade generally. We hope, however, that they are prudent enough to avoid any action which would cause so much vexation and loss.
